

Blessings from Canada

Nicole Wong
(Across U-hub)

With the same hope, we are connected. Connected by blessings. Strangers as we might be, this hope and faith that we hold cross the miles between us.

I was so moved upon seeing my coworkers and some young volunteers rolling up their sleeves to make paper, penning their sincere wishes, songs and words from their heart. To me, every genuine wish that bears blessings consoles the despaired, lift up bruised spirits, and sort out disoriented feelings—that emotions may be stilled.

Though from different walks of life, if we cherish every moment of our get together to tell our stories, to see and touch the fragility and strength of living, our lives will be spurred on to introspect on our being.

Stories tell about the endless possibilities in life—stories of joy, grief, loneliness, frustrations and happiness. To face life, we need perseverance, an open mind, broadened horizon and a vision. No matter what, we strive to live out faith, hope, love.

